Bound by law

P President Reagan said yesterday the law against security leaks is not directed at just the press. Asked about CIA Director William Casey's strong threats to prosecute the press, Mr. Reagan replied: "It isn't just a case of what we may think or not. There is a law that was passed, I believe it was 1954, that's very specific; not just about the media, it's about anyone who makes public information which can be dangerous to our national security. And I would think that all of us are bound by that law." The law, which actually was enacted in 1950, is the one first cited by Mr. Casey.
